Terrain description

Sprint

Urban area with generally paved tracks. A mix between streets, park terrain and forest. There are no residential homes in the area. The buildings are offices and as the sprint will take place on a Danish holiday there will be very limited traffic and people. Still, riders have to obey traffic rules. The area will not be closed for traffic.

Long distance

Flat area with high density of roads, tracks and trails. There is a MTB-track running through the area, so you might meet other riders during the race. The rideability of the tracks is generally good, however weather condition in the days before the competition is decisive.

Mixed relay

Flat area with lower density of roads, tracks and trails compared to the long distance area. The rideability of the tracks is generally good, however weather condition in the days before the competition is decisive.

Training opportunities

The traditional Danish MTBO Camp is on the island Bornholm from 11. April to 15. April 2014. See details on <http://www.mtbocamp.dk/2014/>. The terrain on Bornholm is quite comparable to North Zealand but training more close to the competition areas can be organized.
